Agricultural Trade Surplus Jumps -

The February agricultural trade surplus rose 26 percent over January. It was also 16 percent above last February, and at $1.6 billion, it was at its highest level since November. Exports rose 9 percent, while imports fell 3 percent. The cumulative trade surplus for October 1990 to February 1991 was $7 billion, 16 percent below the same period last year (table 3).

February Agricultural Exports Higher -

Increased shipments of major crops drove U.S. agricultural exports up by $274 million. At $3.5 billion, the value of February's exports rose 9 percent above January's, but lagged slightly behind last February. Increases in corn, wheat, and soybeans more than offset decreases in hides and skins, live animals, and tobacco. However, October through February cumulative exports totaled $16.5 billion, $1.4 billion below last year.

Corn shipments increased again in February, making it the largest farm export for 5 months in a row. Exports totaled $510 million and 4.6 million tons. The Soviet Union received the largest shipment, 1.8 million tons. Japan took just under 1 million tons. Other important corn markets during February included Taiwan and Spain.

The value of soybean exports rose 14 percent over January to $412 million. Volume rose to 1.8 million tons. The European Community accounted for almost half of the shipments. Japan, Taiwan, and Mexico also were important markets. Soybean meal exports rose 30 percent to 542,000 tons. More than half went to the Soviet Union.

Wheat shipments also increased. The value of wheat exports jumped 26 percent to $236 million with volume rising to 2.5 million tons. The volume was the largest monthly total since September 1990. Even with the increase, this February's wheat exports fell $149 million below February last year because of lower prices.

Egypt, Algeria, and the USSR were the largest U.S. wheat importers in February. Egypt receives its wheat imports under the P.L. 480 program, Algeria under the Export Enhancement (EEP) and concessional sales programs, and the USSR under EEP. China and Japan were also large markets in February.

Cotton export volume rose in February for the fourth consecutive month. However, the value of cotton exports fell to $362 million. About 219,000 tons were shipped in February. China, the European Community, and Korea were the major markets.

Agricultural Imports Ease - U.S. imports of agricultural products fell 3 percent in February. At $1.9 billion, the value was 6 percent lower than a year earlier. The cumulative import value for October to February totaled $9.4 billion, about the same as last year. Seasonal increases continued for fresh fruits and vegetables. They were offset, however, by declines in coffee, cocoa, and sugar imports. (Susan Pollack, 202-219-0822).

California Still the Top Exporter - California continued as the leading State for agricultural exports for the sixth consecutive year, based on ERS estimates. Fruits, vegetables, nuts, cotton, seeds, and rice contributed to the State's total exports valued at $4.2 billion. The other leading exporting States were Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Texas, Kansas, Minnesota, Indiana, Washington, and Missouri (table 4).
